Plot Overview of A Raisin in the Sun SparkNotes

"A Raisin in the Sun" centers on the Younger family, who reside in a cramped apartment on Chicago's South Side during the 1950s. The play begins as the family awaits a $10,000 life insurance check following the death of Walter and Beneatha's father. Each family member has distinct dreams shaped by their circumstances and hopes for a better life. The matriarch, Lena Younger (Mama), wishes to buy a house and provide stability; Walter Lee, her son, aspires to invest in a liquor store and achieve financial independence; Beneatha, Walter's sister, seeks to become a doctor and embrace her African heritage.

As the plot unfolds, the Younger family disputes how best to use the insurance money, revealing tensions around ambition, race, and family unity. Mama ultimately puts a down payment on a house in a predominantly white neighborhood, risking hostility and discrimination. Walter Lee faces betrayal through a failed business deal, but ultimately reclaims his dignity and leadership, rejecting a buyout offer from the neighborhood's representatives. The play concludes with the Youngers determined to move forward, embodying hope and resilience despite adversity.

- Setting: Chicago's South Side, 1950s
- Main Conflict: How to use the insurance money
- Resolution: The family chooses to move into their new home

Major Characters in A Raisin in the Sun SparkNotes

Lena Younger (Mama)

Lena Younger, known as Mama, is the moral anchor of the family. Her values revolve around faith, family, and providing a better life for her children. Mama's decision to buy a house demonstrates her commitment to creating a legacy and stability for future generations.

Walter Lee Younger

Walter Lee is the passionate and ambitious son who dreams of financial success. He struggles with feelings of inadequacy and frustration, believing that money will solve the family's problems. Walter's journey from despair to self-respect is central to the play's message.

Beneatha Younger

Beneatha is Walter's younger sister, an intellectual and aspiring doctor. She challenges traditional gender roles and explores her identity, particularly her African heritage. Beneatha's relationships with George Murchison and Joseph Asagai highlight cultural and philosophical differences.

Ruth Younger

Ruth is Walter's wife, facing exhaustion and disillusionment. She provides practical support to the family and quietly hopes for a better future, especially for her young son, Travis.

Other Key Characters

- Travis Younger: Walter and Ruth's son, symbolizes hope for the future
- Joseph Asagai: Beneatha's Nigerian suitor, encourages her to embrace African roots
- George Murchison: Wealthy suitor, represents assimilation and materialism
- Karl Lindner: Representative of the white neighborhood, offers the family money not to move in

Key Themes and Motifs in A Raisin in the Sun

SparkNotes

The American Dream

The play scrutinizes the concept of the American Dream, especially as experienced by African American families. Each character's vision of success is shaped by personal desires and societal barriers. The Youngers' pursuit of homeownership becomes a symbol of dignity and hope.

Racism and Discrimination

Racial prejudice is a recurring obstacle for the Youngers. The family's decision to move into a white neighborhood confronts segregation, bigotry, and systemic inequality. Hansberry highlights the harsh realities faced by black families in mid-century America.

Family and Generational Conflict

Conflicts between family members reflect generational differences in values, aspirations, and coping mechanisms. Mama's traditionalism clashes with Walter's ambitions and Beneatha's progressive ideals, yet their shared struggles ultimately unify them.

Identity and Heritage

Beneatha's exploration of African heritage and self-identity represents a broader search for cultural roots. The play encourages pride in one's background while acknowledging the complexities of assimilation.

Historical and Social Context of A Raisin in the Sun

SparkNotes

Lorraine Hansberry wrote "A Raisin in the Sun" during a period marked by racial segregation and the civil rights movement. The play premiered in 1959, breaking new ground as the first Broadway play written by an African American woman. Hansberry's own experiences informed the story, especially her family's legal battle against housing discrimination in Chicago.

The play's social context underscores the systemic barriers faced by black families seeking upward mobility. It reflects the struggles against discriminatory housing policies, limited economic opportunities, and the fight for equal rights. "A Raisin in the Sun" remains a vital commentary on the ongoing quest for justice and equality in America.

Symbolism in A Raisin in the Sun SparkNotes

The Plant

Mama's struggling plant symbolizes the family's resilience and hope. Despite limited resources and harsh conditions, the plant survives, mirroring the Youngers' determination to thrive against adversity.

Money and the Insurance Check

The life insurance money represents both opportunity and conflict. It serves as a catalyst for the family's dreams and disagreements, highlighting the intersection of ambition, sacrifice, and ethical choices.

The New House

The house embodies the promise of a new beginning, security, and the fight against racial prejudice. It is a tangible representation of the family's aspirations and Mama's legacy.

A Raisin in the Sun SparkNotes: A Comprehensive Guide to Lorraine Hansberry's Masterpiece

Are you facing a mountain of homework, grappling with the complexities of Lorraine Hansberry's A Raisin in the Sun, or simply craving a deeper understanding of this iconic American play? You've come to the right place. This comprehensive guide provides a detailed A Raisin in the Sun SparkNotes analysis, covering everything from the plot summary and character analysis to thematic explorations and critical interpretations. We'll delve into the play's enduring relevance, making this your ultimate resource for conquering this literary classic.

A Raisin in the Sun: Plot Summary SparkNotes

The play centers around the Younger family, an African American family living in a cramped South Side Chicago apartment in the 1950s. Their lives are marked by poverty, racial prejudice, and the constant struggle for a better future. The family's hopes are pinned on a $10,000 life insurance check received after the death of the patriarch, Walter Lee Younger, Sr. This money sparks conflict and reveals the family's diverse dreams and aspirations.

Walter Lee, the son, dreams of investing in a liquor store, believing it's his ticket to financial independence and respect. His wife, Ruth, is practical and concerned about the family's immediate needs. Their teenage son, Travis, embodies the innocence and optimism of youth. Walter Lee's sister, Beneatha, a fiercely independent college student, aspires to become a doctor, defying societal expectations. Finally, Mama, the matriarch, represents the family's collective wisdom and hopes for a better life.

The play unfolds as the family grapples with how to best utilize the insurance money. Walter Lee's impulsive decision to invest with a dubious acquaintance leads to devastating consequences, testing the family's resilience and revealing the complexities of their relationships. The Younger family ultimately faces a significant decision: stay in their cramped apartment or move to a predominantly white neighborhood, a decision laden with racial implications and social commentary.

Character Analysis SparkNotes: Unveiling the Younger Family

Walter Lee Younger: The play's protagonist, Walter Lee is a complex character torn between his desire for financial success and his responsibility to his family. His ambition is both admirable and flawed, highlighting the limitations and pressures faced by Black men in a racially charged society. He represents the struggle for dignity and self-respect in the face of systemic oppression.

Ruth Younger: Ruth is the steadfast pillar of the family, balancing practicality with unwavering love and support for her family. She represents the resilience and strength of Black women navigating patriarchal structures and economic hardship.

Beneatha Younger: Beneatha is a symbol of intellectual ambition and self-discovery, challenging traditional gender roles and racial stereotypes. Her pursuit of education reflects the broader struggle for upward mobility within the Black community.

Mama (Lena Younger): The matriarch, Mama, is the heart of the family. She embodies wisdom, patience, and unwavering faith in the face of adversity. Her decision-making process represents the difficult choices faced by families striving for a better life.

Travis Younger: Young Travis's innocence and dreams contrast sharply with the harsh realities of his family's situation, highlighting the intergenerational impact of poverty and racism.

Themes in A Raisin in the Sun: SparkNotes Exploration

The American Dream: The play explores the elusive nature of the American Dream, particularly for African Americans facing systemic racism and economic inequality. The Younger family's pursuit of a better life highlights the challenges and contradictions inherent in this ideal.

Family Dynamics and Conflict: The play vividly portrays the complexities of family relationships, showcasing both love and conflict within the Younger family. The tensions arising from differing aspirations and financial pressures reveal the vulnerabilities and resilience of family bonds.

Racial Prejudice and Discrimination: Hansberry powerfully depicts the pervasive nature of racial prejudice and discrimination in 1950s America. The play's setting, plot, and characters underscore the systematic oppression faced by African Americans and their constant struggle for equality.

Gender Roles and Expectations: A Raisin in the Sun challenges traditional gender roles and expectations. Beneatha's aspirations and Ruth's resilience showcase the strength and ambition of Black women despite societal limitations.

a raisin in the sun sparknotes: So Long a Letter Mariama Bâ, 2012-05-06 Written by award-winning African novelist Mariama Bâ and translated from the original French, So Long a Letter has been recognized as one of Africa's 100 Best Books of the 20th Century. The brief narrative, written as an extended letter, is a sequence of reminiscences —some wistful, some bitter—recounted by recently widowed Senegalese schoolteacher Ramatoulaye Fall. Addressed to a lifelong friend, Aissatou, it is a record of Ramatoulaye's emotional struggle for survival after her husband betrayed their marriage by taking a second wife. This semi-autobiographical account is a perceptive testimony to the plight of educated and articulate Muslim women. Angered by the traditions that allow polygyny, they inhabit a social milieu dominated by attitudes and values that deny them status equal to men. Ramatoulaye hopes for a world where the best of old customs and new freedom can be combined. Considered a classic of contemporary African women's literature, So Long a Letter is a must-read for anyone interested in African literature and the passage from colonialism to modernism in a Muslim country. Winner of the prestigious Noma Award for Publishing in Africa.

She is not only a gifted writer, but an absolutely essential one.” —The New York Times Book Review The House on Mango Street is one of the most cherished novels of the last fifty years. Readers from all walks of life have fallen for the voice of Esperanza Cordero, growing up in Chicago and inventing for herself who and what she will become. “In English my name means hope,” she says. “In Spanish it means too many letters. It means sadness, it means waiting. Told in a series of vignettes—sometimes heartbreaking, sometimes joyous—Cisneros’s masterpiece is a classic story of childhood and self-discovery and one of the greatest neighborhood novels of all time. Like Sinclair Lewis’s Main Street or Toni Morrison’s Sula, it makes a world through people and their voices, and it does so in language that is poetic and direct. This gorgeous coming-of-age novel is a celebration of the power of telling one’s story and of being proud of where you’re from.

a raisin in the sun sparknotes: Wild Company Mel Ziegler, Patricia Ziegler, 2012-10-02 In the tradition of Pour Your Heart Into It and How Starbucks Saved My Life, a surprising and inspiring memoir from the founders of Banana Republic. With $1,500 and no business experience, Mel and Patricia Ziegler turned a wild idea into a company that would become the international retail colossus Banana Republic. Re-imagining military surplus as safari and expedition wear, the former journalist and artist created a world that captured the zeitgeist for a generation and spoke to the creativity, adventure, and independence in everyone. In a book that’s honest, funny, and charming, Mel and Patricia tell in alternating voices how they upended business conventions and survived on their wits and imagination. Many retail and fashion merchants still consider Banana Republic’s early heyday to be one of the most remarkable stories in fashion and business history. The couple detail how, as “professional amateurs,” they developed the wildly original merchandise and marketing innovations that broke all retail records and produced what has been acclaimed by industry professionals to be “the best catalogue of all time.” A love story wrapped in a business adventure, Wild Company is a soulful, inspiring tale for readers determined to create their own destiny with a passion for life and work and fun.

a raisin in the sun sparknotes: Half of a Yellow Sun Chimamanda Ngozi Adichie, 2010-10-29 With her award-winning debut novel, Purple Hibiscus, Chimamanda Ngozi Adichie was heralded by the Washington Post Book World as the "21st century daughter" of Chinua Achebe. Now, in her masterly, haunting new novel, she recreates a seminal moment in modern African history: Biafra's impassioned struggle to establish an independent republic in Nigeria during the 1960s. With the effortless grace of a natural storyteller, Adichie weaves together the lives of five characters caught up in the extraordinary tumult of the decade. Fifteen-year-old Ugwu is houseboy to Odenigbo, a university professor who sends him to school, and in whose living room Ugwu hears voices full of revolutionary zeal. Odenigbo's beautiful mistress, Olanna, a sociology teacher, is running away from her parents' world of wealth and excess; Kainene, her urbane twin, is taking over their father's business; and Kainene's English lover, Richard, forms a bridge between their two worlds. As we follow these intertwined lives through a military coup, the Biafran secession and the subsequent war, Adichie brilliantly evokes the promise, and intimately, the devastating disappointments that marked this time and place. Epic, ambitious and triumphantly realized, Half of a Yellow Sun is a more powerful, dramatic and intensely emotional picture of modern Africa than any we have had before.

Refusing to identify as either American or Canadian first bars their entry into the US, and then their return into Canada. In the limbo between countries, they find power in their connection to their identity and to each other. Borders explores nationhood from an Indigenous perspective and resonates deeply with themes of identity, justice, and belonging.

a raisin in the sun sparknotes: All But My Life Gerda Weissmann Klein, 1995-03-31 All But My Life is the unforgettable story of Gerda Weissmann Klein's six-year ordeal as a victim of Nazi cruelty. From her comfortable home in Bielitz (present-day Bielsko) in Poland to her miraculous survival and her liberation by American troops—including the man who was to become her husband—in Volary, Czechoslovakia, in 1945, Gerda takes the reader on a terrifying journey. Gerda's serene and idyllic childhood is shattered when Nazis march into Poland on September 3, 1939. Although the Weissmanns were permitted to live for a while in the basement of their home, they were eventually separated and sent to German labor camps. Over the next few years Gerda experienced the slow, inexorable stripping away of all but her life. By the end of the war she had lost her parents, brother, home, possessions, and community; even the dear friends she made in the labor camps, with whom she had shared so many hardships, were dead. Despite her horrifying experiences, Klein conveys great strength of spirit and faith in humanity. In the darkness of the camps, Gerda and her young friends manage to create a community of friendship and love. Although stripped of the essence of life, they were able to survive the barbarity of their captors. Gerda's beautifully written story gives an invaluable message to everyone. It introduces them to last century's terrible history of devastation and prejudice, yet offers them hope that the effects of hatred can be overcome.

a raisin in the sun sparknotes: Sigh, Gone Phuc Tran, 2020-04-21 For anyone who has ever felt like they don't belong, Sigh, Gone shares an irreverent, funny, and moving tale of displacement and assimilation woven together with poignant themes from beloved works of classic literature. In 1975, during the fall of Saigon, Phuc Tran immigrates to America along with his family. By sheer chance they land in Carlisle, Pennsylvania, a small town where the Trans struggle to assimilate into their new life. In this coming-of-age memoir told through the themes of great books such as The Metamorphosis, The Scarlet Letter, The Iliad, and more, Tran navigates the push and pull of finding and accepting himself despite the challenges of immigration, feelings of isolation, and teenage rebellion, all while attempting to meet the rigid expectations set by his immigrant parents. Appealing to fans of coming-of-age memoirs such as Fresh Off the Boat, Running with Scissors, or tales of assimilation like Viet Thanh Nguyen's The Displaced and The Refugees, Sigh, Gone explores one man's bewildering experiences of abuse, racism, and tragedy and reveals redemption and connection in books and punk rock. Against the hairspray-and-synthesizer backdrop of the '80s, he finds solace and kinship in the wisdom of classic literature, and in the subculture of punk rock, he finds affirmation and echoes of his disaffection. In his journey for self-discovery Tran ultimately finds refuge and inspiration in the art that shapes—and ultimately saves—him.

In 1959, Russ and Bev are selling their desirable two-bed for a knock-down price, enabling the first black family to move into the neighbourhood and alarming the cosy white urbanites of Clybourne Park, Chicago. In 2009 the same property is being bought by Lindsey and Steve, a young white couple, whose plan to raze the house and start again is met with a similar response. As the arguments rage and tensions rise, ghosts and racial resentments are once more uncovered... Bruce Norris's play Clybourne Park was first performed at Playwrights Horizons, New York City, in February 2010. The play received its European premiere at the Royal Court Theatre, London, in September 2010, transferring to Wyndham's Theatre in the West End in February 2011. The play received numerous awards, including the London Evening Standard Award for Best Play, the Critics Circle Award for Best New Play, the Olivier Award for Best New Play, the Tony Award for Best Play and the Pulitzer Prize for Drama.

In 1955 people all over the United States knew that Emmett Louis Till was a fourteen-year-old African American boy lynched for supposedly whistling at a white woman in Mississippi. The brutality of his murder, the open-casket funeral held by his mother, Mamie Till Mobley, and the acquittal of the men tried for the crime drew wide media attention. In a profound and chilling poem, award-winning poet Marilyn Nelson reminds us of the boy whose fate helped spark the civil rights movement.

—The New York Times Book Review A young man's close-knit family is nearly destitute when his uncle founds a successful spice company, changing their fortunes overnight. As they move from a cramped, ant-infested shack to a larger house on the other side of Bangalore, and try to adjust to a new way of life, the family dynamic begins to shift. Allegiances realign; marriages are arranged and begin to falter; and conflict brews ominously in the background. Things become "ghachar ghochar"—a nonsense phrase uttered by one meaning something tangled beyond repair, a knot that can't be untied. Elegantly written and punctuated by moments of unexpected warmth and humor, Ghachar Ghochar is a quietly enthralling, deeply unsettling novel about the shifting meanings—and consequences—of financial gain in contemporary India. "A classic tale of wealth and moral ruin." —The New Yorker "Ghachar Ghochar introduces us to a master." —The Paris Review Named a Best Book of the Year by the Guardian, Globe and Mail, and Publishers Weekly Shortlisted for the ALTA National Translation Award in Prose Longlisted for the International Dublin Literary Award a raisin in the sun sparknotes: Take Back the Game Linda Flanagan, 2022-08-23 A close look at how big money and high stakes have transformed youth sports, turning once healthy, fun activities for kids into all-consuming endeavors—putting stress on children and families alike. Some 75% of American families want their kids to play sports. Athletics are training grounds for character, friendship, and connection; at their best, sports insulate kids from hardship and prepare them for adult life. But youth sports have changed so dramatically over the last 25 years that they no longer deliver the healthy outcomes everyone wants. Instead, unbeknownst to most parents, kids who play competitive organized sports are more likely to burn out or suffer from overuse injuries than to develop their characters or build healthy habits. What happened to kids' sports? And how can we make them fun again? In Take Back the Game, coach and journalist Linda Flanagan reveals how the youth sports industry capitalizes on parents' worry about their kids' futures, selling the idea that more competitive play is essential in the feeding frenzy over access to colleges and universities. Drawing on her experience as a coach and a parent, along with research and expert analysis, Flanagan delves into a national obsession that has: Compelled kids to specialize year-round in one sport. Increased the risk of both physical injury and mental health problems. Encouraged egregious behavior by coaches and parents. Reduced access to sports for low-income families. A provocative and timely entrant into a conversation thousands of parents are having on the sidelines, Take Back the Game uncovers how youth sports became a serious business, the consequences of raising the stakes for kids and parents alike—and the changes we need now.

a raisin in the sun sparknotes: Looking for Lorraine Imani Perry, 2018-09-18 Winner of the 2019 PEN/Jacqueline Bograd Weld Award for Biography Winner of the Lambda Literary Award for LGBTQ Nonfiction Winner of the Shilts-Grahn Triangle Award for Lesbian Nonfiction Winner of the 2019 Phi Beta Kappa Christian Gauss Award A New York Times Notable Book of 2018 A revealing portrait of one of the most gifted and charismatic, yet least understood, Black artists and intellectuals of the twentieth century. Lorraine Hansberry, who died at thirty-four, was by all accounts a force of nature. Although best-known for her work A Raisin in the Sun, her short life was full of extraordinary experiences and achievements, and she had an unflinching commitment to social justice, which brought her under FBI surveillance when she was barely in her twenties. While her close friends and contemporaries, like James Baldwin and Nina Simone, have been rightly celebrated, her story has been diminished and relegated to one work—until now. In 2018, Hansberry will get the recognition she deserves with the PBS American Masters documentary “Lorraine Hansberry: Sighted Eyes/Feeling Heart” and Imani Perry’s multi-dimensional, illuminating biography, Looking for Lorraine. After the success of A Raisin in the Sun, Hansberry used her prominence in myriad ways: challenging President Kennedy and his brother to take bolder stances on Civil Rights, supporting African anti-colonial leaders, and confronting the romantic racism of the Beat poets and Village hipsters. Though she married a man, she identified as lesbian and, risking censure and the prospect of being outed, joined one of the nation’s first lesbian organizations. Hansberry associated with many activists, writers, and musicians, including Malcolm X, Langston Hughes, Duke Ellington, Paul Robeson, W.E.B. Du Bois, among others. Looking for Lorraine is a powerful insight into Hansberry’s extraordinary life—a life that was tragically cut far too short. A a raisin in the sun sparknotes: Reading With Patrick Michelle Kuo, 2017-07-13 As a young English teacher keen to make a difference in the world, Michelle Kuo took a job at a tough school in the Mississippi Delta, sharing books and poetry with a young African-American teenager named Patrick and his classmates. For the first time, these kids began to engage with ideas and dreams beyond their small town, and to gain an insight into themselves that they had never had before. Two years later, Michelle left to go to law school; but Patrick began to lose his way, ending up jailed for murder. And that's when Michelle decided that her work was not done, and began to visit Patrick once a week, and soon every day, to read with him again. Reading with Patrick is an inspirational story of friendship, a coming-of-age story for both a young teacher and a student, an expansive, deeply resonant meditation on education, race and justice, and a love letter to literature and its power to transcend social barriers.

a raisin in the sun sparknotes: Breathe Imani Perry, 2019-09-17 2020 Chautauqua Prize Finalist 2020 NAACP Image Award Nominee - Outstanding Literary Work (Nonfiction) Best-of Lists: Best Nonfiction Books of 2019 (Kirkus Reviews) · 25 Can't-Miss Books of 2019 (The Undeclared) Explores the terror, grace, and beauty of coming of age as a Black person in contemporary America and what it means to parent our children in a persistently unjust world. Emotionally raw and deeply reflective, Imani Perry issues an unflinching challenge to society to see Black children as deserving of humanity. She admits fear and frustration for her African American sons in a society that is increasingly racist and at times seems irredeemable. However, as a mother, feminist, writer, and intellectual, Perry offers an unfettered expression of love—finding beauty and possibility in life—and she exhorts her children and their peers to find the courage to chart their own paths and find steady footing and inspiration in Black tradition. Perry draws upon the ideas of figures such as James Baldwin, W. E. B. DuBois, Emily Dickinson, Toni Morrison, Ralph Waldo Emerson, and Ida B. Wells. She shares vulnerabilities and insight from her own life and from encounters in places as varied as the West Side of Chicago; Birmingham, Alabama; and New England prep schools. With original art for the cover by Ekua Holmes, Breathe offers a broader meditation on race, gender, and the meaning of a life well lived and is also an unforgettable lesson in Black resistance and resilience.

A powerful exploration of the Asian American experience, Hunger weaves the forces of war and magic, food and desire, ghosts and family into poignant tales of love and loss. Celebrated author Lan Samantha Chang illuminates the lives of first-generation immigrants from China, culturally and emotionally uprooted from their homeland, who mistrust connection even as they hunger for attachment—and shows how their choices shape their children. The characters who inhabit this extraordinary collection, "a work of a raisin in the sun sparknotes: If Beale Street Could Talk (Movie Tie-In) James Baldwin, 2018-10-30 A stunning love story about a young Black woman whose life is torn apart when her lover is wrongly accused of a crime—a moving, painful story, so vividly human and so obviously based on reality that it strikes us as timeless (The New York Times Book Review). One of the best books Baldwin has ever written—perhaps the best of all. —The Philadelphia Inquirer Told through the eyes of Tish, a nineteen-year-old girl, in love with Fonny, a young sculptor who is the father of her child, Baldwin’s story mixes the sweet and the sad. Tish and Fonny have pledged to get married, but Fonny is falsely accused of a terrible crime and imprisoned. Their families set out to clear his name, and as they face an uncertain future, the young lovers experience a kaleidoscope of emotions—affection, despair, and hope. In a love story that evokes the blues, where passion and sadness are inevitably intertwined, Baldwin has created two characters so alive and profoundly realized that they are unforgettably ingrained in the American psyche.

a raisin in the sun sparknotes: Monsieur Linh and His Child Philippe Claudel, 2011-03-31 Traumatized by memories of his war-ravaged country, his son and daughter-in-law dead, Monsieur Linh travels to a foreign land to bring the child in his arms to safety. To begin with, he is too afraid to leave the refugee centre, but the first time he braves the freezing cold to walk the streets of this strange, fast-moving town, he encounters Monsieur Bark, a widower whose dignified sorrow mirrors his own. Though they have no shared language, an instinctive friendship is forged; but Monsieur Linh's stay in the dormitory is only temporary. Sooner or later he and his child must find a permanent home. Delicate and restrained, but with an extraordinary twist, Monsieur Linh and His Child is an immensely moving novel of perfect simplicity, by the author of Brodeck's Report.

Fans of Jacqueline Woodson, Meg Medina, and Jason Reynolds will fall hard for this astonishing New York Times-bestselling novel-in-verse by an award-winning slam poet, about an Afro-Latina heroine who tells her story with blazing words and powerful truth. Xiomara Batista feels unheard and unable to hide in her Harlem neighborhood. Ever since her body grew into curves, she has learned to let her fists and her fierceness do the talking. But Xiomara has plenty she wants to say, and she pours all her frustration and passion onto the pages of a leather notebook, reciting the words to herself like prayers—especially after she catches feelings for a boy in her bio class named Aman, who her family can never know about. With Mami’s determination to force her daughter to obey the laws of the church, Xiomara understands that her thoughts are best kept to herself. So when she is invited to join her school’s slam poetry club, she doesn’t know how she could ever attend without her mami finding out. But she still can’t stop thinking about performing her poems. Because in the face of a world that may not want to hear her, Xiomara refuses to be silent. “Crackles with energy and snaps with authenticity and voice.” —Justina Ireland, author of Dread Nation “An incredibly potent debut.” —Jason Reynolds, author of the National Book Award Finalist Ghost “Acevedo has amplified the voices of girls en el barrio who are equal parts goddess, saint, warrior, and hero.” —Ibi Zoboi, author of American Street This young adult novel, a selection of the Schomburg Center's Black Liberation Reading List, is an excellent choice for accelerated tween readers in grades 6 to 8.
