"A Long Walk to Water" is a novel by Linda Sue Park, first published in 2010. The book intertwines two narratives: one set in 1985 following Salva Dut, a Sudanese boy forced to flee his home due to civil war, and the other set in 2008 centering on Nya, a young girl whose daily life revolves around fetching water for her family. The novel is based on the true story of Salva Dut, who became one of the Lost Boys of Sudan and later helped bring clean water to his homeland. Through its dual narrative, the book illustrates the struggles faced by individuals living in areas affected by conflict and water scarcity. It has become a popular choice in classrooms for its accessible style and powerful message about resilience and hope.

Main Characters and Their Journeys

Salva Dut: The Lost Boy of Sudan

Salva Dut's journey is central to "A Long Walk to Water." Forced to flee his village during the Second Sudanese Civil War, Salva endures harrowing conditions as he walks hundreds of miles in search of safety. He faces hunger, danger, and separation from his family. Eventually, Salva becomes a refugee, first in Ethiopia and later in Kenya, before being resettled in the United States. Salva's perseverance and determination lead him to return to Sudan as an adult, where he founds Water for South Sudan, an organization dedicated to drilling wells and providing clean water to rural communities.

Nya: A Girl's Daily Struggle

Nya's story reflects the everyday reality for many children in South Sudan. Each day, she walks for hours to fetch water from a distant pond, a task that prevents her from attending school and participating in other activities. Her journey highlights the burdens placed on children—especially girls—in regions without reliable access to clean water. Nya's narrative intersects with Salva's in the latter part of the book, demonstrating how one person's efforts can transform entire communities.

Supporting Characters

The novel also features several supporting characters who play significant roles in the protagonists' lives. These include Salva's family members, fellow refugees, aid workers, and the villagers in Nya's community. Each character adds depth to the narrative and helps illustrate the collective impact of conflict and scarcity, as well as the importance of compassion and solidarity.

Themes Explored in the Story

Resilience and Hope

In 1861, America is on the cusp of war, and young Jethro Creighton is just nine-years-old. His brother, Tom, and his cousin, Eb, are both of fighting age. As Jethro's family is pulled into the conflict between the North and the South, loyalties are divided, dreams are threatened, and their bonds are put to the test in this heart-wrenching, coming of age story. "Drawing from family records and from stories told by her grandfather, the author has, in an uncommonly fine narrative, created living characters and vividly reconstructed a crucial period of history."—Booklist long walk to water: Holidate Monica Murphy, 2019-10-09 Candice Gaines loves Christmas. Not only does she bask in the twinkling lights, sing Christmas carols and go crazy with the decorations, she's also in the giving spirit, donating much of her time and wealth to various charities in the local area. Charlie Sullivan despises Christmas. Though it keeps his family afloat, considering they own Sullivan Family Christmas Tree Farm, the main provider for Christmas trees on the Monterey peninsula. He'd much rather work among the trees versus have to deal with people. But Charlie's parents are taking on more philanthropic projects-and as their oldest child, they want him to be their official public representative. He just has to play nice and convince everyone he's not a total holiday hater. When Charlie's mom asks Candice to accompany him to a variety of holiday parties and events, she reluctantly agrees. She thinks Charlie is a big ol' Grinch, but is determined to change his mindset and help him spread Christmas cheer. Charlie finds Candice is too chatty, too sweet, too much. Do people like her really exist? Why yes, yes they do. The more time they spend together-along with a few kisses under the mistletoe-the more they start to like each other. Hopefully Charlie can convince Candice he doesn't have a heart that's two sizes too small before the ball drops on New Year's Eve.

long walk to water: The Jewel Garden Monty Don, Sarah Don, Monty Don & Sarah Don, 2012-03-01 'TRULY INSPIRING' Mail on Sunday Now familiar to millions of Gardeners' World fans as Longmeadow (the home of Nigel & Nellie), this is the story of Monty & Sarah Don's early days there. The Jewel Garden is the story of the garden that bloomed from the muddy fields around the Dons' Tudor farmhouse, a perfect metaphor for the Monty and Sarah's own rise from the ashes of a spectacular commercial failure in the late '80s. At the same time The Jewel Garden is the story of a creative partnership that has weathered the greatest storm, and a testament to the healing powers of the soil. Monty Don has always been candid about the garden's role in helping him to pull back from the abyss of depression; The Jewel Garden elaborates on this much further. Written in an optimistic, autobiographical vein, Monty and Sarah's story is truly an exploration of what it means to be a gardener.

Bound to be alone and unmarried, with no parents to arrange for a suitable husband. Dubbed Lazy One by her stepmother, Xing Xing spends her days taking care of her half sister, Wei Ping, who cannot walk because of her foot bindings, the painful but compulsory tradition for girls who are fit to be married. Even so, Xing Xing is content, for now, to practice her gift for poetry and calligraphy, to tend to the mysterious but beautiful carp in her garden, and to dream of a life unbound by the laws of family and society. But all of this is about to change as the time for the village's annual festival draws near, and Stepmother, who has spent nearly all of the family's money, grows desperate to find a husband for Wei Ping. Xing Xing soon realizes that this greed and desperation may threaten not only her memories of the past, but also her dreams for the future. But Hanna is half-Chinese, and she knows from experience that most white people don't want neighbors who aren't white themselves. The people of LaForge have never seen an Asian person before; most are unwelcoming and unfriendly--but they don't even know her!
