Exam Structure and Content Areas

The RBT practice exam 75 questions is structured to align with the BACB's requirements for Registered Behavior Technicians. It covers five major content areas, each vital to the role of an RBT. Measurement

Questions in the measurement section evaluate your ability to collect, record, and interpret behavioral data. This includes topics such as frequency, duration, latency, and inter-response time. Mastery of measurement techniques is fundamental for accurately assessing client progress and making data-driven decisions.

Assessment

Assessment questions focus on skills involved in conducting preference assessments, identifying environmental variables, and understanding functional behavior assessment principles. Skill Acquisition

Skill acquisition items assess your knowledge of teaching strategies, discrete trial training, task analysis, chaining, and reinforcement procedures. Effectively promoting new skills in clients is a core responsibility of an RBT, making this section especially significant.

Behavior Reduction

This section covers the implementation of behavior intervention strategies, identification of antecedents and consequences, and the use of proactive and reactive techniques to decrease challenging behaviors. RBTs must demonstrate competence in using ethical and effective behavior reduction plans.

Documentation and Reporting

Documentation and reporting questions test your ability to maintain accurate records, communicate findings, and adhere to confidentiality standards. Proper documentation ensures accountability and supports continuous improvement in client care.

Professional Conduct and Scope of Practice

Professional conduct questions assess your understanding of ethical standards, the RBT Code of Ethics, and appropriate interactions with clients and supervisors. Adhering to professional guidelines is essential for maintaining certification and delivering high-quality services.
