

18th airborne corps holiday schedule

18th airborne corps holiday schedule is a crucial topic for military personnel, their families, and support staff stationed at Fort Liberty and related installations. Understanding the official holiday schedule helps everyone plan vacations, family gatherings, and essential duties throughout the year. This comprehensive guide explores the current 18th Airborne Corps holiday schedule, details federal holidays observed, special military observances, and provides tips for maximizing time off. Readers will also find information on how holidays may affect training exercises, duty rotations, and support services. By the end of this article, you will have clear insights into how the 18th Airborne Corps manages its holiday calendar, important considerations for planning, and answers to common questions surrounding holiday leave and schedules.

- Overview of the 18th Airborne Corps Holiday Schedule
- Federal Holidays Observed by the 18th Airborne Corps
- Special Military Observances and Training Holidays
- Leave Policies and Procedures During Holidays
- Impact of Holidays on Duty Rotations and Mission Readiness
- Family Support and Morale Programs During Holidays
- Planning Tips for Service Members and Families

Overview of the 18th Airborne Corps Holiday Schedule

The 18th Airborne Corps, headquartered at Fort Liberty, maintains a structured holiday schedule designed to balance operational requirements with the well-being of its soldiers and families. The official holiday calendar aligns closely with federal and Department of Defense guidelines but also includes training holidays and special observances unique to the military. Adhering to this schedule ensures mission continuity while providing opportunities for rest and family time. The holiday schedule is typically published annually and distributed to all units within the corps.

Key Features of the Schedule

- Alignment with federal holiday observances
- Inclusion of training holidays for extended breaks
- Consideration for operational readiness and mission demands
- Advance notification to allow for planning

Commanders may adjust specific dates based on mission requirements, but the general schedule remains consistent year to year. This predictability helps service members and their families make informed decisions regarding leave and travel.

Federal Holidays Observed by the 18th Airborne Corps

The 18th Airborne Corps observes all major federal holidays recognized by the United States government. These holidays are significant not only for their historical importance but also for providing regular intervals of rest and reflection for soldiers and support personnel. Observing federal holidays is part of the military's commitment to maintaining morale and work-life balance.

List of Federal Holidays

1. New Year's Day (January 1)
2. Martin Luther King Jr. Day (Third Monday in January)
3. Presidents Day (Third Monday in February)
4. Memorial Day (Last Monday in May)
5. Juneteenth National Independence Day (June 19)
6. Independence Day (July 4)
7. Labor Day (First Monday in September)
8. Columbus Day (Second Monday in October)
9. Veterans Day (November 11)

10. Thanksgiving Day (Fourth Thursday in November)

11. Christmas Day (December 25)

During these holidays, most administrative offices and support facilities operate on reduced schedules or are closed. Mission-essential personnel may still be required to work, depending on operational needs.

Holiday Schedule Adjustments

If a federal holiday falls on a weekend, the 18th Airborne Corps typically observes the holiday on the nearest weekday, consistent with federal policy. Additional training holidays may be scheduled to create extended weekends, especially around major holidays like Thanksgiving and Christmas.

Special Military Observances and Training Holidays

In addition to federal holidays, the 18th Airborne Corps incorporates special military observances and training holidays into its calendar. These are designated days when units may stand down from regular duties to allow for rest, training, or commemorative events. Training holidays are particularly valued for providing longer breaks without impacting mission readiness.

Common Training Holidays

- Day after Thanksgiving ("Black Friday")
- Christmas Eve and New Year's Eve
- Days adjacent to major federal holidays for extended leave
- Corps-specific anniversaries or commemorative days

Commanders have flexibility in scheduling training holidays based on operational tempo and exercise schedules. Soldiers should consult their unit leadership for specific dates and guidelines.

Observances Unique to Military Life

The 18th Airborne Corps may also recognize unique observances such as Airborne Day, unit anniversaries, and other commemorative events that celebrate military heritage. These occasions often include ceremonies, physical training competitions, and community outreach activities.

Leave Policies and Procedures During Holidays

Leave and pass policies are a critical aspect of the 18th Airborne Corps holiday schedule. Soldiers are encouraged to use their authorized leave during holiday periods, provided it does not conflict with mission requirements. Commanders work with personnel to accommodate leave requests and ensure fair distribution of time off.

Types of Leave Available

- Annual leave (vacation)
- Passes (short-term time off)
- Emergency leave
- Special leave for family events

Leave requests should be submitted well in advance, especially around high-demand periods such as Thanksgiving, Christmas, and New Year's. Priority is often given to soldiers who are geographically separated from family or have not taken recent leave.

Leave Approval Process

The leave approval process involves submitting a formal request through the unit's chain of command. Approval depends on staffing levels, operational commitments, and individual circumstances. Soldiers are advised to remain flexible and communicate early to maximize their chances of receiving desired leave dates.

Impact of Holidays on Duty Rotations and Mission Readiness

The holiday schedule requires careful coordination to ensure that the 18th Airborne Corps remains ready to respond to any mission while granting rest periods. Duty rotations may be adjusted to accommodate holidays, and critical roles are maintained by designated personnel.

Maintaining Mission Essential Coverage

- Staffing for emergency response teams
- Security personnel remain on duty
- Medical and support services operate on holiday schedules
- Command posts maintain 24/7 readiness

All units develop staffing plans that ensure uninterrupted support for both soldiers and families, even during holidays. Mission readiness remains the top priority, with clear guidelines for who is required to work and who may be released on leave.

Training Exercise Scheduling

Major training exercises are typically scheduled outside of holiday periods to maximize participation and minimize disruptions. However, unforeseen mission requirements may lead to adjustments in the holiday calendar.

Family Support and Morale Programs During Holidays

The 18th Airborne Corps places significant emphasis on supporting families and boosting morale during the holiday season. A variety of programs and events are organized to enhance the holiday experience for soldiers and their loved ones, especially those separated by deployment.

Examples of Morale Programs

- Holiday parties and unit gatherings
- Gift and care package distributions
- Children's events and Santa visits
- Resilience workshops and counseling services

These initiatives foster a sense of community and help ease the challenges of military life during the holidays. Chaplain services, family readiness groups, and community centers play an active role in organizing and supporting these programs.

Planning Tips for Service Members and Families

Effective planning is essential for making the most of the 18th Airborne Corps holiday schedule. Soldiers and families should stay informed about official holiday calendars, anticipate peak leave periods, and utilize available resources to enhance their holiday experience.

Holiday Planning Checklist

- Review the official holiday schedule early
- Submit leave requests as soon as possible
- Coordinate travel and lodging arrangements
- Participate in unit and community events
- Utilize support services for stress management

By following these tips, service members and their families can enjoy a well-deserved break while maintaining readiness and supporting each other during the holiday season.

Questions and Answers: 18th Airborne Corps Holiday Schedule

Q: What federal holidays are observed by the 18th Airborne Corps?

A: The 18th Airborne Corps observes major federal holidays including New Year's Day, Martin Luther King Jr. Day, Presidents Day, Memorial Day, Juneteenth, Independence Day, Labor Day, Columbus Day, Veterans Day, Thanksgiving, and Christmas.

Q: How are training holidays different from federal holidays?

A: Training holidays are additional days off scheduled by command to extend breaks around federal holidays or important events, allowing soldiers more rest without impacting mission readiness.

Q: When is the official holiday schedule published for the 18th Airborne Corps?

A: The official holiday schedule is typically published annually and distributed to all units, with updates provided as necessary based on operational requirements.

Q: Can soldiers request leave during any holiday?

A: Soldiers may request leave during holidays, but approval depends on operational needs, staffing levels, and individual circumstances.

Q: What support programs are available for families during holidays?

A: The corps offers holiday parties, gift distributions, children's events, counseling services, and family readiness group activities to support soldiers and their families.

Q: Are duty rotations adjusted during the holiday season?

A: Yes, duty rotations are often adjusted to ensure mission essential roles are covered while allowing as many soldiers as possible to enjoy time off.

Q: How does the corps handle holiday observance if a holiday falls on a weekend?

A: If a holiday falls on a weekend, it is typically observed on the nearest weekday in accordance with federal policy.

Q: Are there unique military observances included in the holiday calendar?

A: Yes, the 18th Airborne Corps may include unique observances such as Airborne Day or unit anniversaries, featuring commemorative events and ceremonies.

Q: How should families plan for the holiday season with the corps schedule?

A: Families should review the official holiday schedule, submit leave requests early, coordinate travel, and participate in community events for a fulfilling holiday experience.

Q: What is the best way to stay informed about schedule changes?

A: Soldiers and families should regularly check with their unit leadership and official corps communications for the most current holiday schedule and updates.

18th Airborne Corps Holiday Schedule

Find other PDF articles:

<https://fc1.getfilecloud.com/t5-w-m-e-04/pdf?docid=dXj05-5545&title=experience-biology-textbook.pdf>

18th Airborne Corps Holiday Schedule: Your Guide to Planned Downtime

Planning your leave around the 18th Airborne Corps' holiday schedule is crucial for maximizing your time off and ensuring smooth coordination with your unit. This comprehensive guide provides you with all the information you need to navigate the 18th Airborne Corps' holiday calendar, offering clarity on official holidays, potential unit-specific variations, and the best practices for requesting leave. We'll delve into the intricacies of military leave policies as they relate to the 18th Airborne Corps, helping you plan your well-deserved breaks effectively.

Understanding the 18th Airborne Corps Holiday Schedule:

The 18th Airborne Corps' holiday schedule generally aligns with the federal government's holiday schedule, incorporating established federal holidays like Christmas, Thanksgiving, and Memorial Day. However, it's vital to understand that the official published schedule isn't the only factor in determining your actual time off.

Federal Holidays and Their Impact on the 18th Airborne Corps

The 18th Airborne Corps observes all federally mandated holidays. This means that you can typically expect to have these days off:

New Year's Day: January 1st

Martin Luther King, Jr. Day: Third Monday in January

Presidents' Day: Third Monday in February

Memorial Day: Last Monday in May

Juneteenth National Independence Day: June 19th

Independence Day: July 4th
Labor Day: First Monday in September
Columbus Day: Second Monday in October
Veterans Day: November 11th
Thanksgiving: Fourth Thursday in November
Christmas Day: December 25th

Important Note: While these are the standard federal holidays, the 18th Airborne Corps may adjust observance based on operational requirements. Always confirm the specific holiday schedule with your unit's leadership.

Unit-Specific Variations and Operational Needs

The 18th Airborne Corps' vast operational commitments mean that the standard holiday schedule might be subject to change. Deployments, training exercises, or other operational necessities can impact the availability of leave during designated holiday periods. Your immediate chain of command will provide the most accurate and up-to-date information regarding your unit's specific holiday schedule and leave policies.

Staying Informed: Regular communication with your superiors is key. Attend all unit briefings and check internal communication platforms regularly for any updates or changes to the leave schedule.

Submitting Your Leave Request: A Step-by-Step Guide

Submitting your leave request well in advance is critical, especially during peak holiday seasons. Here's a general guideline, though specific procedures may vary within the 18th Airborne Corps:

1. Check Your Unit's Leave Policy: Familiarize yourself with your unit's specific guidelines regarding leave requests, including deadlines and required documentation.
2. Submit the Request: Use the appropriate channels for submitting leave requests within the 18th Airborne Corps' system. This often involves submitting a formal leave request through your chain of command.
3. Obtain Approvals: Ensure you receive all necessary approvals from your superiors before considering your leave finalized.
4. Confirm Your Leave: Once approved, confirm your leave details to ensure there are no discrepancies.

Proactive Planning: Plan your leave well in advance to avoid last-minute complications and ensure the smooth processing of your request.

Beyond the Official Schedule: Accrued Leave and Other Considerations

Remember that your total leave entitlement is governed by your rank and time in service. Accrued leave can be used in conjunction with official holidays to extend your time off. Carefully manage your leave balance to avoid any issues with exceeding your allotted time off. Consult your personnel office for detailed information on your leave accrual and usage.

Conclusion:

Navigating the 18th Airborne Corps' holiday schedule requires a proactive and informed approach. By understanding the standard federal holiday schedule, anticipating potential unit-specific variations, and diligently following the correct leave request procedures, you can effectively plan your time off and enjoy your well-deserved breaks. Always prioritize communication with your chain of command for the most accurate and up-to-date information.

Frequently Asked Questions:

1. Where can I find the most accurate and up-to-date 18th Airborne Corps holiday schedule? The most reliable source is your immediate unit leadership and internal communication channels.
2. What happens if my leave request is denied during a holiday period? If your leave request is denied, your chain of command will provide the reasons for the denial and may offer alternative solutions.
3. Can I use accrued leave to extend my time off during a holiday? Yes, you can typically combine accrued leave with official holidays to extend your time off.
4. What are the consequences of not submitting my leave request in time? Late or improperly submitted leave requests may be denied, leading to disruption of your plans.
5. Who should I contact if I have questions about my leave entitlement or the holiday schedule? Contact your unit's personnel office or your immediate supervisor for clarification.

18th airborne corps holiday schedule: The U.S. Military Intervention in Panama , 18th airborne corps holiday schedule: The U.S. Military Intervention in Panama: Operation Just Cause, December 1989-January 1990 Lawrence A. Yates, 2014 Examines how American military power was employed during Operation Just Cause, including the planning process and joint efforts of the U.S. Army and U.S. Marine Corps during major combat operations. Also details post-combat stability and nation-building operations.

18th airborne corps holiday schedule: Airborne Tom Clancy, 1997-11-01 They are America's front lines--serving proudly in forward areas around the world. Representing the very best from the Army and Air Force, the Airborne Task Force is an unstoppable combination of manpower and firepower. Now, Tom Clancy examines this elite branch of our nation's armed forces. With pinpoint accuracy and a style more compelling than any fiction, the acclaimed author of Executive Orders delivers an fascinating account of the Airborne juggernaut--the people, the technology, and Airborne's mission in an ever-changing world...*Two Tom Clancy mini-novels--real world scenarios involving the airborne task force*Airborne's weapons of the 21st century, including the Javelin anti-tank missile, the fiber-optically guided N-LOS fire support system, and the Joint Strike Fighter*18 weeks: Life in an Airborne Alert Brigade*Exclusive photographs, illustrations, and diagramsPLUS: An in-depth interview with the incoming commander of the 18th Airborne Corps, General John Keen

18th airborne corps holiday schedule: Encouraging Faith, Supporting Soldiers John W. Brimsfield, 1997

18th airborne corps holiday schedule: Assembly West Point Association of Graduates (Organization)., 1967

18th airborne corps holiday schedule: Carolina Comments , 1996

18th airborne corps holiday schedule: Army, Navy, Air Force Journal , 1954

18th airborne corps holiday schedule: Public Administration Richard J. Stillman, II, Richard Joseph Stillman, 1991

18th airborne corps holiday schedule: Lucky War Richard Moody Swain, 1997 Provides an account, from the point of view of the U.S. Army forces employed, of the 1990-91 Persian Gulf War, from the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait to the withdrawal of coalition forces from southeastern Iraq. It focuses on the Army's part in this war, particularly the activities of the Headquarters, Third Army, and the Army Forces Central Command (ARCENT). It looks especially at the activities of the VII Corps, which executed ARCENT's main effort in the theater ground force schwerpunkt -- General Schwarzkopf's Great Wheel. This is not an official history; the author speaks in his own voice and makes his own judgments. Maps.

18th airborne corps holiday schedule: Northern California Jewish Bulletin , 1990-07

18th airborne corps holiday schedule: Mobil Travel Guide , 1969

18th airborne corps holiday schedule: Directory of Federal Libraries William R. Evinger, 1993 Much pertinent information on the system of federal libraries and their resources and services is conveniently brought together here for the first time in a one-stop source. -- Booklist/Reference Books Bulletin A new geographic index and expanded coverage on each federal library are highlights of the changes in this second edition. Entries provide information for each library, including the number of staff, size of collections, the type of retrieval system, CD-ROM availability, fax policy, publications issued, network memberships, contract status, and the names and phone numbers of cataloging and automation services contacts.

18th airborne corps holiday schedule: The Other End of the Spear John J. McGrath, 2011-09-16 This book looks at several troop categories based on primary function and analyzes the ratio between these categories to develop a general historical ratio. This ratio is called the Tooth-to-Tail Ratio. McGrath's study finds that this ratio, among types of deployed US forces, has steadily declined since World War II, just as the nature of warfare itself has changed. At the same time, the percentage of deployed forces devoted to logistics functions and to base and life support functions have increased, especially with the advent of the large-scale of use of civilian contractors. This work provides a unique analysis of the size and composition of military forces as found in historical patterns. Extensively illustrated with charts, diagrams, and tables. (Originally published by the Combat Studies Institute Press)

18th airborne corps holiday schedule: The Ardennes Hugh Marshall Cole, 1994

18th airborne corps holiday schedule: Operation Just Cause Ronald H. Cole, 1995

18th airborne corps holiday schedule: War in the Persian Gulf Richard Winship Stewart, 2010 Twenty years ago, the Persian Gulf War captured the attention of the world as the first test of the U.S. Army since the Vietnam War and the first large-scale armor engagement since World War II. Saddam Hussein's invasion of Kuwait and his subsequent ouster by the U.S.-led coalition are keys to understanding today's situation in the Middle East. The coalition partnerships cemented in that initial operation and in the regional peacekeeping operations that followed provided the basis for a growing series of multinational efforts that have characterized the post-Cold War environment. Moreover, the growing interoperability of U.S. air, sea, and land forces coupled with the extensive employment of more sophisticated weapons first showcased in Desert Storm have become the hallmark of American military operations and the standard that other nations strive to meet.

18th airborne corps holiday schedule: The Soviet Airborne Experience David M. Glantz, Combat Studies Institute (U.S.), 1984 Contents: The Prewar Experience; Evolution of Airborne Forces During World War II; Operational Employment: Vyaz'ma, January-February 1942; Operational Employment: Vyaz'ma, February-June 1942; Operational Employment: On the Dnepr, September 1943; Tactical Employment; The Postwar Years.

18th airborne corps holiday schedule: The Golden Brigade Robert J. Dvorchak, 2022-12-06 An epic tale of a brotherhood forged by war—masterfully told by a lifelong journalist, war correspondent, and U.S. Army veteran. “A must-read by military historians who follow the 82nd Airborne Division. It is a compilation of fascinating stories by brave soldiers who found themselves in the crucible of fierce combat.” —LTG (Retired) James H. Johnson, 82nd Airborne Division Commander, Panama and Desert Storm “This book is the best I have ever read about the real situation experienced by infantrymen in the Vietnam War. The stories honor the American soldier and their families, and demonstrate the pride all of us had in these men and their leaders.... A grand slam hit out of the park.” —Robert D. Murrill, Esq., Distinguished Member of the 508th Parachute Infantry Regiment in the Golden Brigade “It is a story that needs to be told, and one that all paratroopers, young and old, need to know. When the nation calls, there were and must always be those who will answer—even if it means they sacrifice their todays so that others will experience their tomorrows.” —J. Thomas Hennessey Jr., Colonel (Retired), Distinguished Member of the 505th Parachute Infantry Regiment, Chief of Staff Emeritus at George Mason University “A solid chunk of history about an extraordinary brotherhood of warriors.” —Vietnam Veterans of America

18th airborne corps holiday schedule: The Whirlwind War Frank N. Schubert, 1995 CMH Publication 70-30. Edited by Frank N. Schubert and TheresaL. Kraus. Discusses the United States Army's role in the Persian Gulf War from August 1990 to February 1991. Shows the various strands that came together to produce the army of the 1990s and how that army in turn performed under fire and in the glare of world attention. Retains a sense of immediacy in its approach. Contains maps which were carefully researched and compiled as original documents in their own right. Includes an index.

18th airborne corps holiday schedule: The 101st Airborne Division's Defense Of Bastogne [Illustrated Edition] Colonel Ralph M. Mitchell, 2014-08-15 [Includes 53 photos/illustrations and 11 maps] The defense of Bastogne during the Battle of the Bulge in World War II is one of the supreme achievements of American arms. Bastogne is deservedly identified with the finest characteristics of the American soldier, and the name Bastogne symbolizes a heroic battle. Bastogne has long held the attention of students of war, yet the battle offers new insights for soldiers with modern concerns. Colonel Ralph M. Mitchell's study, The 101st Airborne Division's Defense of Bastogne, reveals how a light infantry division, complemented by key attachments, stopped an armor-heavy German corps. Using original documents and reports, Colonel Mitchell traces the fight at Bastogne with emphasis on the organization, movement and, employment of the 101st Airborne Division. Although a variety of factors influenced the outcome at Bastogne, the flexibility of the 101st to reconfigure for sustained operations and to defeat strong opposition forces even when surrounded shows how properly augmented light infantry can fight and win.

18th airborne corps holiday schedule: Enabling the Global Response Force Christopher G. Pernin, Katharina Ley Best, Matthew E. Boyer, Jeremy Michael Eckhause, John Gordon, Dan Madden, Katherine Pfrommer, Anthony D. Rosello, Michael Schwille, Michael Robert Shurkin, Jonathan P. Wong, 2016 The Global Response Force (GRF) is built for rapid response to unforeseen or, more specifically, unplanned operations. Selected Army airborne forces provide a large portion of the GRF and are dependent on joint concepts for deployment and access. This study illustrates a method for determining the best access strategies given constraints in aircraft, intermediate staging bases, operational capabilities, and other factors. The study applies this method to each geographic combatant command and develops specific, tailored strategies for each. The access strategies are built from multiple analytic techniques: historical aircraft data and platform specifications to determine capabilities and limitations of the air fleet; several airfield databases, site reports, and expert judgments to determine probable intermediate staging base locations and their likely capabilities; multiple deployment concepts for access to minimize operational risks; and detailed geographic and operational analysis to determine global coverage and reach. In the end, we were able to deduce a preferred strategy for each of the combatant commands. Global access for the GRF is provided partially through the use of well-established staging bases but will necessarily rely on austere basing and complex deployment concepts for particular locations in multiple combatant commands. The study concludes with several recommendations to close those risks, which span the services, combatant commands, and joint staff--Back cover.

18th airborne corps holiday schedule: Armored Infantry Battalion United States. War Department, 1944

18th airborne corps holiday schedule: Hell's Highway Tim Saunders, 2009-05-18 This WWII history and battleground guide offers a fascinating look at the vital and infamous stretch of road through the Netherlands. After the Allied victory at Normandy, Operation Market Garden was intended to cut a path to Germany through the Netherlands. Essential to the plan was a two-lane road that came to be known as Hell's Highway. This was the route that the British 3rd Guards Armored Division had to advance down rapidly to relieve the American Paratroopers of the 82d Airborne at Nijmegen and the British 1st Airborne Division at Arnhem. Beginning with the famous capture of Joe's Bridge by the Irish Guards—an essential preliminary action before the start of Operation Market Garden—historian Tim Saunders guides visitors through the seizure of bridges, the liberation of small towns, and other actions undertaken by the famous Screaming Eagles. With vivid personal accounts throughout, this guide features practical visitor information about monuments and other important sites.

18th airborne corps holiday schedule: US Army Physician Assistant Handbook , 2018 The Army physician assistant (PA) has an important role throughout Army medicine. This handbook will describe the myriad positions and organizations in which PAs play leadership roles in management and patient care. Chapters also cover PA education, certification, continuing training, and career progression. Topics include the Interservice PA Program, assignments at the White House and the Old Guard (3d US Infantry Regiment), and roles in research and recruiting, as well as the PA's role in emergency medicine, aeromedical evacuation, clinical care, surgery, and occupational health.--Amazon.com viewed Oct. 29, 2020.

18th airborne corps holiday schedule: The United States Army in Somalia, 1992-1994 Richard Winship Stewart, 2002

18th airborne corps holiday schedule: Supporting the Troops Janet A. McDonnell, 2005-01-01 Army engineer support to U.S. Central Command's joint maneuver force during the Persian Gulf War was massive and critical. Over 100 active and reserve component engineer units contributed significantly to the success of Operation DESERT SHIELD/DESERT STORM. These contributions are well documented in Supporting the Troops: The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers in the Persian Gulf War. The Gulf War dramatically demonstrated the need to deploy engineers early so that they can determine the engineer requirements, communicate those requirements to the maneuver commanders, and take appropriate steps to bed down and sustain U.S. forces. The delayed flow of engineers and their equipment into Southwest Asia directly affected the ability of the maneuver units to sustain themselves and operate effectively. We are now moving toward a smaller, quality Army with rapidly deployable forces. There are fewer engineer units than in 1990, and a larger proportion of the engineer force is in the reserve components. As the active component force continues to shrink, we must insure that the reserve component engineer forces are well trained and ready to deploy on short notice. During the Gulf War engineers provided the model for the Total

Army concept, successfully blending Active Army, Army National Guard, Army Reserve, and Department of Defense civilian engineer capabilities. U.S. forces could not have succeeded in the Gulf without the assistance of the reserve components and civilians. The force structure of today's Active Army does not include a number of specialized engineer units needed to support a large-scale deployment. Nor do operational engineer units have all the special expertise that can be found in the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers. As Supporting the Troops vividly illustrates, the contributions of the Corps' military and civilian members were diverse and significant. Over 160 Corps civilians, who voluntarily deployed to Southwest Asia, provided procurement, design, construction, and real estate support. Corps members worked diligently, often in difficult conditions, to provide for the well-being and safety of tens of thousands of U.S. soldiers. They devised creative solutions to the problems they encountered, whether implementing new policies or developing new project designs. It was my privilege to serve with them in the Persian Gulf. Pat M. Stevens IV Major General, USA Acting Chief of Engineers

18th airborne corps holiday schedule: Eyes Behind the Lines: US Army Long-Range Reconnaissance and Surveillance Units James F. Gebhardt, 2005 Eyes Behind the Lines: US Army Long-Range Reconnaissance and Surveillance Units is the 10th study in the Combat Studies Institute (CSI) Global War on Terrorism (GWOT) Occasional Paper series. This work is an outgrowth of concerns identified by the authors of On Point: The United States Army in Operation IRAQI FREEDOM. Specifically, these authors called into question the use of long-range surveillance (LRS) assets by commanders during that campaign and suggested an assessment ought to be made about their continuing utility and means of employment. This revision contains some important additional information the author received after this book was originally published Major (Retired) James Gebhardt, of CSI, researched and wrote this Occasional Paper with that end in view. In this study, Gebhardt surveys the US Army's historical experience with LRRP and LRS units from the 1960s Cold War and Vietnam War, through their resurgence in the 1980s and use in Operations JUST CAUSE and DESERT STORM, to the advent of the GWOT. The paper's analytical framework examines each era of LRS units in terms of doctrine, organization, training, materiel, leadership, and personnel. In doing so, the author makes a strong case for continuing the LRS capability in the Army's force structure. The variety of environments and enemies likely to be faced by the military in the GWOT continues to demand the unique human intelligence abilities of trained and organized LRS units. As the Army leads the Armed Forces of the United States in combating terrorists where they live, the lessons found in this survey remain timely and relevant.

18th airborne corps holiday schedule: US Army Airborne 1940-90 Gordon L. Rottman, 2012-09-20 The first 50 years of the US Army airborne arm is a story of continuing battles with the nation's enemies, of battles within the Army's hierarchy, of change, and of adaptation. If there is any single attribute the airborne soldier can claim as his most sterling, it is his uncanny ability to adapt - his flexibility. The very nature of a paratrooper demands this ability to adapt. The motivation and esprit de corps it develops within these units is something not to be taken lightly. The first class pairing of Gordon L. Rottman and Ron Volstad bring to life the history of these remarkable troops.

18th airborne corps holiday schedule: Air Force Combat Units of World War II Maurer Maurer, 1961

18th airborne corps holiday schedule: Government Printing and Binding Regulations United States. Congress. Joint Committee on Printing, 1990

18th airborne corps holiday schedule: Certain Victory Robert H. Scales, 1998-02-27 The official U.S. Army account of Army performance in the Gulf War, Certain Victory was originally published by the Office of the Chief of Staff, U.S. Army, in 1993. Brig. Gen. Scales, who headed the Army's Desert Storm Study Project, offers a highly readable and abundantly illustrated chronicle.

18th airborne corps holiday schedule: Rapid Deployment Logistics Gary H. Wade, 1984 President Camille Chamoun of Lebanon made an urgent plea on 14 July 1958 to the governments of France, Great Britain, and the United States to deploy military forces to Lebanon. Received in Washington at 0600 on 14 July, this message became the first test of the Eisenhower Doctrine, which had been announced in January 1957. The JCS activated a Specified Command, Middle East (SPECOMME), and designated Adm. James L. Holloway, Commander in Chief, North Atlantic and Mediterranean, as the Commander in Chief, SPECOMME (CINCSPECOMME). According to a JCS memorandum, These actions marked the beginning of operation 'Blue Bat,' the first United States airborne-amphibious operation to occur in peacetime. Contents: Doctrine, Planning, Background, Problems, Deployment, Organization, Resupply, Procurement, Civil affairs, Medical support, Security, Plans, Task force 201, On-hand supplies, 31 August 1958.

18th airborne corps holiday schedule: Order of Battle Thomas D. Dinackus, 2000 Order of Battle is a detailed study of the Allied ground combat units that served in Operation Desert Storm. It lists the U.S. Army, Marine Corps, British, French and Arab units that served and depicts the command relationships between the units before and during Operation Desert Storm. Also identifies the major types of materiel used by the various units and compares the Army and Marine Corps forces deployed to the Gulf. Includes reproductions of unit patches, medals and ribbons from all states and countries involved.

18th airborne corps holiday schedule: Not Eating Enough Institute of Medicine, Committee on Military Nutrition Research, 1995-09-01 Eating enough food to meet nutritional needs and maintain good health and good performance in all aspects of life—both at home and on the job—is important for all of us throughout our lives. For military personnel, however, this presents a special challenge. Although soldiers typically have a number of options for eating when stationed on a base, in the field during missions their meals come in the form of operational rations. Unfortunately, military personnel in training and field operations often do not eat their rations in the amounts needed to ensure that they meet their energy and nutrient requirements and consequently lose weight and potentially risk loss of effectiveness both in physical and cognitive performance. This book contains 20 chapters by military and nonmilitary scientists from such fields as food science, food marketing and engineering, nutrition, physiology, psychology, and various medical specialties. Although described within a context of military tasks, the committee's conclusions and recommendations have wide-reaching implications for people who find that job-related stress changes their eating habits.

18th airborne corps holiday schedule: Army Support During the Hurricane Katrina Disaster James A. Wombwell, 2011 This is a print on demand edition of a hard to find publication. Hurricane Katrina, in Aug. 2005, was the costliest hurricane as well as one of the five deadliest storms in U.S. history. It caused extensive destruction along the Gulf coast from central Florida to Texas. Some 22,000 Active-Duty Army personnel assisted with relief-and-recovery operations in Mississippi and Louisiana. At the same time, all 50 states sent approx. 50,000 National Guard personnel to deal with the storm's aftermath. Because the media coverage of this disaster tended toward the sensational more than the analytical, many important stories remain to be told in a dispassionate manner. This study offers a dispassionate analysis of the Army's response to the natural disaster by providing a detailed account of the operations in Louisiana and Mississippi.

18th airborne corps holiday schedule: Those Devils In Baggy Pants Ross S. Carter, 2015-11-06 "THE GLORY AND SHAME OF WAR, VIVIDLY PORTRAYED IN A BOOK THAT IS 'ONE OF THE VERY BEST'"—F. Van Wyck Mason Suicide Squad Ross Carter was one of three men who survived the suicide stands of his platoon of paratroopers. They had a three-way destiny—to be wounded, killed, or captured. But bound together by deep comradeship and extraordinary daring, the twelve men in his unit set incredible records of heroism. Here are the unvarnished stories of ordinary men faced with the reality of death at any moment. They beef, get drunk, quarrel violently, take their women where they find them, and yet achieve an epic grandeur in their deeds. "Every level of society had its representation among us. Senators' sons rubbed shoulders with ex-cowboys. Steel workers chummed up with tough guys from city slums. Farm boys, millionaires' spoiled brats, white-collar men, factory workers, ex-convicts, jailbirds, and hoboes joined for the thrill and adventure of parachute jumping. And so the army's largest collection of adventurous men congregated in the parachute troops." From their first jumps in Africa through the Battle of the Bulge, this is their story—a story filled with breathtaking suspense and inspiring gallantry.

18th airborne corps holiday schedule: Operation Market-Garden 1944 (1) Steven J. Zaloga, 2014-08-20 Overshadowed by the dramatic British failure at Arnhem, the US 82nd and 101st Airborne Divisions were a vital component of Operation Market-Garden and succeeded in capturing their objectives at Eindhoven and Nijmegen. In the summer of 1944, plans began for a complex operation to seize a Rhine river bridge at Arnhem in the Netherlands. The American portion of the airborne mission was to employ two divisions of the US XVIII Airborne Corps to seize key terrain features that otherwise might delay the advance of British tanks towards the bridge. The 82nd and 101st Airborne Divisions succeeded in their tasks of capturing the vital bridges at Eindhoven at Nijmegen in the face of fierce German resistance. However, the delays caused to the British armored advance, combined with stronger than expected fighting at Arnhem led to the withdrawal of the remnants of the British 1st Airborne Division in one of the Western Allies' most costly defeats of World War II. Contemporary photographs, maps and detailed color artwork complement extensive archival research that reveals the successes of those American airborne missions, largely overshadowed by the failure of the operation as a whole.

18th airborne corps holiday schedule: Operation Urgent Fury Ronald H. Cole, 1997

18th airborne corps holiday schedule: Deep Maneuver Jack D Kern Editor, Jack Kern, 2018-10-12 Volume 5, Deep Maneuver: Historical Case Studies of Maneuver in Large-Scale Combat Operations, presents eleven case studies from World War II through Operation Iraqi Freedom focusing on deep maneuver in terms of time, space and purpose. Deep operations require boldness and audacity, and yet carry an element of risk of overextension - especially in light of the independent factors of geography and weather that are ever-present. As a result, the case studies address not only successes, but also failure and shortfalls that result when conducting deep operations. The final two chapters address these considerations for future Deep Maneuver.

18th airborne corps holiday schedule: History of the Unified Command Plan Edward J. Drea, 2013

Back to Home: <https://fc1.getfilecloud.com>